Insider Louisville's Top 100: Change-makers and groundbreakers

Louisville is a city of growing influence, and there are many people in the community who are contributing to the forward momentum. Some are executives of our largest companies. Others are shaping politics. Then, there are the change-makers and groundbreakers who stand out for the bold ways they do things in the entrepreneurial and nonprofit worlds.

At Insider Louisville, our goal is to raise the level of civic engagement in our communities by being an indispensable source of information and gathering people together for critical conversations. To that end, we celebrate these top influencers in our community.

So how does Insider Louisville measure influence? Using our Insider 502 platform, our team of researchers curates and mines data from publicly available business intelligence resources to identify those who are making a significant mark. Founding a company and getting involved in community endeavors are factors that weigh heavily on an individual's ranking. Other variables considered range from leadership roles to board affiliations to social media presence.
