

Thomas Tyler

Global Head of Sales, ELITE, London Stock Exchange

In Tom's role at ELITE, he oversees the global expansion of the ELITE platform and the community of companies within it. Tom has over 20 years of experience in financial markets, with a focus on the engagement with supporting corporates engagement with institutional investment community.

Tom has worked in different capacities with companies such as HSBC Investment Banking in London, Commerzbank and ING. Following this Tom was then recruited to be Global Head of Corporate and Investor Access business at Bloomberg. In his role at Bloomberg he worked extensively with public and private corporates and advised Heads of State, leading political figures, and national exchanges on how to engage with capital markets build long standing relationships with the institutional investor community. He also oversaw Bloomberg's expansion into the start-up tech economy in Europe and developed the first direct access portal for listed entities and institutional investors. Since joining ELITE he has managed the growth of the global community of companies from 600 to 1,400 and expanded the footprint of the group to over 42 countries. Notably Tom has overseen the expansion into the Americas, Brazil and the USA as well as expanding the reach of the group across Europe.